

This architectural elevation drawing shows the front facade of the building. The central section features a prominent gabled roof supported by a truss system, with a large window filled with a grid pattern. To the left and right of this central entrance are long, single-story wings. These wings have a series of windows and doors, each topped with a small, semi-circular decorative element. The entire building is set against a dark, textured ground plane.

[illegible]